The region's ICU capacity was 13.1% because of the growing number of coronavirus cases, the California Department of Public Health announced Friday night.

The region will be eligible to exit from the order on December 28 if ICU capacity projections for the following month are above or equal to 15%, according to the state.

The Southern California region consists of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Diego, Imperial, Inyo, Mono, San Bernardino, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara and Ventura counties.

Schools with waivers can stay open, along with other "critical infrastructure" and retail stores at 20% of capacity. Restaurants will be limited to takeout and delivery service only.

The state will also restrict non-essential travel, Newsom s

The order also bars gatherings of people outside of immec households with some exceptions and requires travelers a from outside the state to fill out an online form. It allows r businesses to remain open for in-person shopping subject county curfew already in place.

Garcetti also urged police and the city attorney to enforce order, which carries misdemeanor penalties.
